

You are cordially invited to a Side Event to the 6th Session of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals

PERMANENT MISSION OF DENMARK
TO THE UNITED NATIONS

Human Rights at the Core of Sustainable and Just Development

Friday, 13 December 2013, 1:15-2:30 PM
United Nations Headquarters, Trusteeship Council Chamber
New York

Human rights have surged to the forefront of the debate about what will succeed the Millennium Development Goals in 2015. Yet, UN member states are just beginning to articulate the concrete implications of embedding human rights into the set of goals, targets, and indicators as well as the accountability and financing systems of the post-2015 sustainable development framework.

In this context, human rights, development and environmental practitioners will discuss the very practical, baseline implications of anchoring the post-2015 SDG framework in existing human rights norms throughout the three dimensions of sustainable development—social, economic, environmental—and the importance of governance and accountability in this regard.

Introductory Remarks

Maria Ana Petrera, Post-2015 Coordinator, Foreign Ministry of Denmark

Panelists

Nicholas Lusiani, Center for Economic and Social Rights

Luisa Cabal, Center for Reproductive Rights

Radhika Balakrishnan, Center for Women's Global Leadership

Marcos Orellana, Center for International Environmental Law

Marisa Viana, Realizing Sexual and Reproductive Justice (RESURJ)

Iain Levine, Human Rights Watch

Yasmin Hussein, Amnesty International [moderator]

For more information, please contact Nerea Craviotto, AWID at NCraviotto@awid.org.